New Coal Firm.
The Fort Scott Coal & Coke Co., the owners of mines and large tract of coal lands in Crawford, Cherokee, and Bourbon counties, Kan., have established an agency here to furnish a leading and growing coal. The product of their large Cherokee County mines is guaranteed free from slate, dirt, and excessive ash. The Fort Scott Coal & Coke Co. is the only one of the numerous companies operating in Kansas, having access to the use of the rock. Their coal has been used on all roads in Kansas for the past two years, and has also taken the premium over all coals in the city and county wherever offered.

Pastel & Crayon
DEPARTMENT.
The very best FREE-HAND CRAYON PORTRAITS, LIFE SIZE, REDUCED from $25 to $10, both elegant and permanent. CRAYONS also at $15, $20, and $25. To such prices ever named before. PASTEL PORTRAITS, LIFE SIZE, recognized for beauty of coloring and absolutely permanent, reduced from $75 to only $40. WELL WORTH THREE TIMES THE PRICE CHARGED.
DOINGS OF THE AX!
When BRAND makes a present he wants to be liberal about it and give something good and worthy of his reputation and the dignity of a first-class establishment. This feeling was shown when a few weeks since he gave away to his patrons 1,000 fine gold and bronze Cabinet Frames at a cost to himself of $6,000. To one had to ask for them. They were given freely to every one, as all his patrons will testify, and they were first-class, splendid goods. So grand a souvenir that whatever is presented at BRAND'S STUDIOS will be carried out on a scale of liberality and honor that cannot but be appreciated.
Sittings Can Be Secured in Advance.
REDUCTION IN ALL CABINET AND LITTLE PRICE. Nothing but the finest were allowed to leave the Studios.

YEARS AGO

WHEN WE WERE YOUNG, we thought nothing of getting $75.00 for the same value of a Parlor or Chamber Suit as you would receive today for $25. "What has made this great change?"

TEMPLE of ECONOMY

Does not propose to take all the wealth, but certainly claims a major portion of it as far as Chicago is concerned. When our Temple was started there was no firm in Chicago that would send a representative to a factory to make an offer and purchase their entire stock of made-up goods of whatsoever kind and then put the goods into the hands of their customers at a slight advance on the cost. This intelligent REVELL admired, and continues to this very day. The effect is to place the consumer on the same footing as the wholesale of smaller and many large dealers in Chicago, and how many have availed themselves of this opportunity is evinced by our 80,000 cash-paying and loyal-receiving customers. If we can satisfy them, then why not you? Now, then,

THIS WEEK

We propose to clean out an immense stock of

PARLOR SUITS

50 Per Cent

LESS than cost to manufacture. Others at from 10 to 20 per cent less than such cost.

A magnificent Embossed Tapestry Five-Piece Suit, upholstered and spring-edged throughout, at only $79—worth $125.

A fine Hair-cloth-covered Stylish Plush Velours Suit at only $85—positively worth $95.

We have only one Suit of each kind, and the prices will run from $24 to $300, and every Suit a bargain.

NORTH CHICAGO Dry Goods House. (Clark & Belmont.)

WEST CHICAGO Dry Goods House. (Madison & Wood-sts.)

We are now entering on what the merchants call the busy season. Store goods assume even every variation, everybody looking on the new styles and debating which is the most becoming and where they can buy to the best advantage. As a general thing merchants (as this country) do not consider it essential to throw out inducements in the way of bargains, but will be satisfied with their regular volume of business and get their usual profits.

Contrary to this general and universal rule, WE HAVE FORCIBLY MADE UP OUR MINDS to quadruple our former business by placing before our patrons in both stores, as a healthful stimulant to accomplish this point, the following mid-summer astounding attractions:

One lot Colored Silk Velvet in various colors at the unprecedented price of

50 cents

Value, $1.00.

200 pcs. Fulle Fashion Dress Silks in all shades, only 39c.

200 pcs. Brilliantine Dress Silks, every color, only 25c.

400 pcs. Magnificent Brocade Satins, with plain to match, only

25 cents

200 pcs. Royal Brocade Silks in all colors and black, only 49c. Actual importation cost, 75c.

The above Advice comprises the entire stock of the celebrated Old World manufacturers, Messrs. Maubel & Co. of Elberfeld, Germany. They were purchased by us at simply nominal prices in consequence of the great Silk depression in that country, and are now slaughtered at figures lower than cost of it in America.

As an additional impetus to our crowded Silk Counters this week we will present to our visitors one pair of the Famous John Arnold's Summer Kilts at the exceedingly low price of

29 cents

Specialty Cheap are two lots of Black Satin Rhadames at 29c and 39c. Actually worth one-third more.

We also offer an extensive variety of Fine Colored Gros Grain Silk at 39c, value 75c; and 75 pcs. regular dollar quality Colored Silks at 65c.

One lot Black Silk in four numbers at 49c, 59c, 69c, and 75c; worth one-third more.

Extraordinary value in Armure Cashmere, also Bayadere Black Silk, at 49c, 59c, 65c, 69c, 75c, 85c, 95c, and 99c to $1.25.

Handsome Satin Rhadames and Satin Duchesse at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, and $2.50.

Two-Toned Evening Satins in all colors, only 49c.

One lot Jacketing Corduroy, only 39c; worth 75c.

200 pcs. Colored Velvets at the popular low price of 49c.

Whitewash 1c Black and Colored Brocade Velvets, only 49c; worth $1.00.

98 pcs. Colored Satins, in every shade, only 49c. Same Fine Satin, 49c; usually sold at 75c.

Rates with Blue and Wood Wheels Black Arrow Silk, for mourning, $1.50.

The above Silks are unquestionably the most unprecedented bargains ever announced in this country, and must certainly attract silk-buyers from every part of the city.

Walk through our stores Tomorrow, Tuesday, any day you please, inspect our offerings at random—here, there, and everywhere—and see if we don't make a realistic claim when we say that pretty much everything we offer just now is a genuine bargain in both stores.

Senator Jarvis paid his respects—in his usual manner—to the Senate yesterday in Cannibalism Smalls and his substitution of the General Land-Office.

Yesterday the Cook County grand jury reported on the Anarchist cases, finding that there was a great conspiracy to attack the police and commit other violent deeds.

Simon Schlaeger, editor of the Milwaukee Volksblatt and State Organizer of the Knights of Labor in Wisconsin, is under indictment at Milwaukee for conspiracy.

The local money market was steady. Local securities were more active. The bank clearings for the week were about $10,000,000. New York exchange was to better demand and firmer. Sterling bills were unchanged. The New York stock market averaged lower, but was irregular.—The Chicago produce markets were strongest, but less active, with some buying of grain on news of a cold wave in the Northwest. As compared with Friday, provisions closed 5@7½ cents higher, wheat ½ cent higher, corn ½ cent higher, oats ¼ cent lower for the month but ½ cent higher for future weeks, rye steady, barley 1 cents lower on poor bids, and flaxseed unchanged. During last week our shipments were greater than the receipts by 72,000 bushels in wheat and less by 742,000 bushels in corn. The amount passing of this city to date includes 9,000 bags, against 800,000 to the same time last year and 871,000 to date in 1894.

THE GRAND JURY'S REPORT.

The grand jury, which has for three weeks been investigating the Anarchist conspiracy, continued its labors yesterday and submitted its report—a most important document—which will be found on another page. The general result of the investigations made so far has been the indictment of ten Anarchist leaders, seven of whom are lodged for murder, and the indictment of about twenty others for conspiracy, riot, and unlawful assembly.

The report bears out in the main the summary of the testimony before the grand jury which has appeared from day to day in THE TRIBUNE. It affirms the existence of a band of conspirators in this city, numbering not more than 100, and perhaps not more than fifty, whose object was murder, destruction, and arson, and that the massacre of the 4th of May "was the result of a deliberate conspiracy."

The report proves further that the conspirators acted nothing about the labor movement. They simply tried to utilize it. They planned the use of dynamite bombs for the time of excitement incident to the eight-hour agitation. They calculated on taking advantage of whatever frightening should arise then between employés and employers to stir in anything out a plan of devastation in this city unequaled except in Paris during the reign of the red terror of the Commune. They have aimed to a limited extent to utilize the trades unions and to a greater extent the Socialistic societies, such as the Central Labor Union. Their plan, as the grand jury sizes, was to involve as far as they could "not only the Socialist and Communist organizations, with whom they claim some kindred, but also the labor societies and trades unions, to the end that in the midst of the excitement they were creating they could not only rely upon them as a source of revenue, but also have them to fall back upon in the event of their freely being made amenable to the law."

The end with which the sympathizers of the indicted parties started the defense fund and the method of their appeal to the workingmen are incidents that confirm the truth of these conclusions of the grand jury.

Full was the leading motive of the exciting leaders. They tried to manipulate the labor agitation for base and selfish motives, "for the power and influence which it gave them, and for the money which they could make out of it; that the large majority of their followers were simply their dupes, and they have selected in this way large sums of money from these followers and from the workingmen of this city."

Every sentiment of Chicago known how some of the persons in sympathy with the Socialistic movement have succeeded in obtaining office and emoluments from some of the clinging politicians to whom the grand jurors alluded. The little group of organizers amongst office as well that a political party, largely personal, has seized to its rule. The Municipal Administration has witnessed precautions on the public streets "carrying banners and inscriptions which were a disgrace and a disgrace to our city and an affront to every law-abiding citizen. Public harangues have been permitted that were an open menace to law and order, and which in logical sequence have resulted their culmination in the bloody outrage known as the Haymarket massacre." All this could have been avoided, as the grand jury points out, that the law been properly enforced (by the damaging "Push-Out") conference and peace would have been preserved, disorder would have been avoided, and massacre averted. The report of the grand jury is a ringing indictment of "Push-Out," and politicians who have cringed to the Anarchist leaders and who have coloured to their support following. The avocation and bravery of those worthies have disgraced the city and have let to the ascribe of valuable lives. They are indirectly responsible for the heavy market measure and for the necessity which now exists of prosecuting the murderers—the ruffians to whom they cringed.

The investigation, however, is of a reassuring character. It proves that the danger has passed; that with ordinary precaution there is no reason to fear a recurrence of the events of a month ago.

THE GRAND EXCITING CONTROLLING THE KNIGHTS.

The Knights of Labor convention was in session nearly two weeks and formulated an imposing list of demands, but no clear-headed, impartial businessman will say that it has suggested a single policy tending to increase wages, secure employment for a greater number, or improve the condition of the laboring classes in any way. Unfortunately the convention was controlled by impracticable visionaries and rashes, discontented men. Quack financial policies were favored and there was no opposition to reject absurd remedies brought to Congress. The proceedings all seem to point to the overthrow of the Powderly faction and the adoption of the order to the control of unbalanced, unreasonable leaders. Even the resolution forbidding strikes and boycotts not approved by the Executive Committee was modified so as not to apply "in cases where immediate action is necessary," and with this grand loophole left it may be questioned whether the new rule will save the Knights from disastrous labor struggles brought about by leaders of the Martin Irons sort.

The "Knights" are wisting the opposition. This great organization, numbering probably not far from a million of men, and with its machinery in operation in nearly every State in the Union, is in good shape to introduce a general system of cooperation in the purchase of goods and supplies—a policy that would be equal to an increase of 10 to 15 per cent in wages. As it is now the workmen who buy on a week's, a fortnight's, or a month's credit pay high prices for supplies usually poor in quality and short in weight or measure. Everything they consume comes to them loaded with the unnecessary profits of middlemen. If they would buy at wholesale or by contract they could get supplies 10 to 15 per cent cheaper and 2 or 3 per cent better in weight or measure, with an equal gain in quality. By practicing the method of cooperation so successfully employed by millions of British workmen the "Knights" could easily secure benefits equivalent to a rise of one-fourth in wages, and the fact that they are already organized gives them unusual facilities for introducing such a system.

A proxy dated in this way would be much better than a proxy secured by forcing an wages. A formal increase of wages by rendering goods dearer impairs the purchasing power of the farmers, swells the cost of living, and compels other classes to "charge back" on the workmen, so that their condition is made little better. On the other hand, to lessen the cost of living by a cooperative purchase of supplies is an exact clear gain and no reaction can be feared. The farmer's ability to purchase city goods would be as great as ever and the manufacturers would not be injured. Production in fact would be increased owing to the enhanced purchasing power of the working classes themselves on the money they would save. Its class would be in a situation to "charge back" on the workmen, and the only persons not benefited would be the superfluous middlemen, who might be compelled into productive pursuits instead of continuing to die out a burthen to mankind by living on goods passing from the producer to the consumer. Cooperation in the purchase of supplies is a certain, easy method for workmen to improve their condition and at the same time confer great benefits on the community in general. Unfortunately the Knights' convention would consider no such policy as this, but spent its entire time devising wrath, impracticable, seditious schemes. Not of the Martin Irons type were elected to the vacant places on the Executive Board, and the Master Workman's recommendations were ignored or voted down. Even Powderly's recommendation that the Knights abstain up on liquor and stop at that this frightful source of waste was not considered worthy an approving resolution. In view of the systematic rejection of other counsel and the general approval of evil, irrational schemes it is not difficult to believe the assertion of a leading Knight that "Powderly (never Cleveland a smaller man by 50 per cent than when he came," and that all hopes of good being brought about by the order have departed in the same ratio.

THE CLOSE OF THE OPERA SEASON.

The opera season of 1894-'95 has come to a close, and in some respects it may certainly challenge comparison with any previous season. The Italian troupe, under Col. Mapleson, came here and did a good business and came back a wreck, stripped of many of its best performers and with a bankrupt exchequer. The German troupe came here from New York, minus some of its best artists, lost money, and soon closed up a disastrous trip. The only full-fledged troupe has been the American, and if it has not made money here it has not been the fault of popular patronage but of the sumptuous and even lavish disbursements made by the manager in the securing of their names. For the first time in the musical history of Chicago opera has been secured here "repertoire of standard." There have been no stars, and yet no qualities whether more perfect performances have ever been given here, even in the palmy days of '76, than those of "Orpheus," "Lohengrin," and "The Flying Dutchman."

For one, then, let us be thankful that we must have an operatic representation, even though it may make us overpartial to the bitter and dissatisfied with the shabby stagings of other troupes. We have had so little, but we have had everything else that we cannot have with Patti, or with any other artist whose wages absorb the entire receipts and leave nothing for running expenses. The principals of the troupe have been capable, efficient, and well disciplined, even if they are not phenomenal, and upon the basis of organization of this troupe phenomena are not to be expected nor the results of solo work such as characterize troupes made up on the star system. In every other respect the American troupe, young as it is, distantly excels all others. The very prodigality of its expenditures is one of the faults of youth. Another year it may spend money more wisely and out of some useless organizations without impairing the efficiency of its performances. Notwithstanding a show of actual reluctance at the outset, it has steadily advanced in public favor, and its closing performances were witnessed by some of the most brilliant audiences that ever assembled in the city. Even those who sought to prejudice its success, for some mysterious reasons, were finally swept into its support. It has made a good name for itself and will be heartily welcomed whenever it shall return.

It is pleasant to note that the magnificent orchestra which has done so much to make the season enjoyable will only be in a temporary quarter, and that in July it will return for the season-eight seats of instrumental sonority which have become a delightful feature of the city's summer-time attractions. Wagner is the future of the American opera and the best opportunity for the development of American art and artists, in which Chicago has taken generous financial action, will be watched with great interest. There are great possibilities in both schemes provided they are prudently and wisely managed and we are personal singularly by temperance and enthusiasm. The experiences of the present season will back some useful lessons already, which need not be influenced by the management. In their future work they at least know they can count upon the active sympathy of the people in every city they have visited, and that is a great point gained.

OUR MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

It may have escaped the attention of the reader that among all the events of festivities, demolition, and other disturbers of the public peace none is more city during the recent labor movement there were none of Swedes, Norwegians, or Danes. The Scandinavian population of the city, numbering over 50,000, has not been engaged in rioting, boycotting, or loafing in club. There have been Scandinavian workingmen among the strikers to some extent, but in no case have they followed the example of some other foreign element in resorting to violence. They like good wages as well as any other class, but do not approve of unlawful means of obtaining them.

Throughout all these labor disturbances the Scandinavians have acted as Americans ought—naturally: in a lawful manner. In point of fact no other nationality assimilates with the American more rapidly than it has once got acquainted with the country and its language. Their record is always a creditable one. In the War of the Secession Scandinavian blood was as Copperheads among them. They were out fifty to the man; and the they were in the front ranks. They were exclusively pro and patriotic supported conscription. They naturally belong to the Republican Union party, and vote in block, except a few of the Danes who have been led astray. In all respects they act with the best class of the American people, and never manifest a desire to set up foreign ways. They are found, also, among the best men, and very popular with the Americans. It is a common remark among the latter that they would like to see more Scandinavians come to this country—a remark, it is needless to say, they do not make about some other nationalities. Those that settle down in the cities go right to work in mills or wood (trifles), and those who go into the country or make homes for themselves in the new States and Territories engage in agricultural pursuits and are a thrifty, enterprising, and industrious class. The wonderful prosperity of the new Northwestern regions recently opened up to settlement is largely due to the Scandinavian element, particularly in Minnesota and Dakota. In the cities they are rarely found in the police courts, hotbeds, or the jail, nor in fact in the ranks of the pauperdom.

The average Scandinavian who has fairly settled down in this country, mastered our language, which he soon does, and become familiar with American habits and institutions takes to them so naturally that in a few years it is difficult to distinguish him from an American. In thrift, economy, and enterprise he resembles the typical New Englander. This mark of credit is due to a people who have borne themselves so splendidly during our recent troubles and who have steadily refused association with the seditious agitators of foreign birth, or any sympathy with their incendiary purposes.

A GREAT FRENCH CLEANUP.

According to a very interesting Paris letter which appears in the New York Sun the French seem to have satisfactorily solved the problem how to save for the citizens of working-people to day occasion. Hitherto working-women having very young children have given them in charge to other poor women called "gardeuses," who have made a business of taking them through the day at the rate of 15 cents per child. The poor men they had, as well as the poor food, caused an much mortality among them that the "gardeuse" came to be known as "angel-makers." The attention of the authorities was at last called to the matter—for children are not so plenty in France that any of them can be spared—and after investigation the "gardeuses" were required to take out permits and were subjected to the surveillance of special inspectors. The result was an improved condition of affairs. More people went into the business, and for the services years ending in 1894 the system gave great satisfaction.

Since "nurse," as they are called, only came to the relief of mothers of children from 2 to 6 years of age. The authorities after a careful investigation in that decided that the same kind of work could be still better done by a charitable institution regularly organized, and that very young infants also should be cared for, as there are more of an inconvenience to mothers than children 3 or 4 years old. The result of their deliberations was the establishment of the "crèche" ("manger"), in which the charge was only 15 cents per day. In 1887 a regular society was formed, and from that time to this the number of crèches has gradually increased. There are now eighty-three in Paris, fourteen in the suburbs, 120 in the departments of France, and three in Algiers. They are classified as "urbaines" (those of cities and towns), "rurales" (those of the country), and "industrielles" (those of the mills), many of the latter having been built by generous millowners for the accommodation of their operatives. The buildings are constructed with special reference to the wants of the location and after plans which have been carefully studied. The management is in the hands of a board of lady patronesses, who supervise the labor needed and are assisted by competent medical advisers. The regulations in brief are as follows:

The children harbored must be in health, over 15 days and under 2 years old, and are not admitted until after they have passed medical examination. Their names, ages, and date of birth, the occupation and residence of their parents, and the daily attendance of each child are carefully recorded. Parents or relatives that have not been vaccinated must give them to be vaccinated at such time as the committee may direct. The children must be put to bed at their regular hours, and be provided with proper clothing and not excluded in cases where the mother's work of her child and her labor requires absence. Each woman must wash and dress her own child, and must be in the crèche at least one hour before and after her work. Each woman must wash her hands before taking her child to nurse, and must not be allowed to take it to her home for the meals and not bring it there unless. The children are carefully attended to as regards their health. The usual charge per day is 15 cents, but those who are unable to afford this are admitted free. The crèche is closed on Sundays and the principal holidays, and each woman is required to pay for the days on which she fails to bring her child. Children are received from the age of 15 days to 2 years old, under the general direction of a superintendress. Some children are received for nursing, others for occasional care. The usual charge per day for each child is 15 cents (about 7½ cents), and only mothers (or nurses) who live within a radius of 1½ kilometers (1 mile) from the crèche are admitted. Each woman has charge of not more than two babies, and each particular baby often not more than three days in succession to 2 crèches

VIEWS OF THE GRAND JURY'S REPORT BY THE ANARCHIST LEADERS.

The Labor Enemies Used as an Opportunity by the Dynamite Fiends—Anarchists Wrought, Unconsciously—The Boy-market Manners the Result of a Deliberate Conspiracy—Harrison's Partisan Policy Toward Bad Dog Curtain Exemplified—Treason for the Police.

The Big grand jury [illegible] was [illegible] and reported to Judge Rogers at 11:15 o'clock and was discharged. The following report, which, it is understood, was written by Mr. John M. Clark, was handed to the Judge:

In presenting the title of indictments which we have this day found, it seems to us that we should be derelict in our duty if we did not call the attention of the public to the causes which have led to the present state of lawlessness and disorder which has culminated in the bomb outrage of the 4th inst. We have endeavored in our deliberations to be guided by the public duty we owe to the community at large, and not by the wishes of a class, under the spirit of the [illegible] and the sense of the outrage of the 4th inst. We have in this connection, upon the strictest personal, official and legal obligations, to say that the [illegible] and [illegible] have been [illegible] to us, to [illegible] to the [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] of

THE BREAD THAT WE EAT.

HOW IT IS MADE AND SOME SECRETS OF THE MANUFACTURE.

What It Is Into Pies and the Many Compounds Which Enter Daily Unless to the Eat of Their Product—The Different Grades—The Products Effect of the Eight-Hour Agitation Upon Prices—Items of the Article.

Between the hours of 2 o'clock at night and 6 in the morning little less than 2,000 men are at work in order that we may have in the morning every man and kid a fresh loaf of bread on his breakfast table. There are half a dozen large bakeries in the city employing between thirty and fifty men each, that turn out 5,000 to 6,000 loaves of bread every morning. Besides these large bakeries there are quite 50 smaller ones scattered all through the city, employing men, boy, and three men and earning not a few hundred dollars each. With the total number of loaves that leave every night it would be difficult to estimate. The product of the principal large bakeries is about 25,000 loaves, so that one plant 625 barrels of flour. The small bakeries use from two to ten barrels, and accordingly bake from 100 to 2,500 loaves. It is not necessary here to successively note baked every night that would be sufficient to provide every inhabitant of Chicago with a loaf of bread every day, not taking any account of those who bake their own bread. Some attempts must be made, however, for those who have no bread, which is of larger size. The large bakeries, following some nothing but wheat bread, white, graham, and mixed or Vienna bread. The bakeries in the outlying districts produce a great deal of rye bread, Vienna bread, and rolls, and "specials" amount to the bulk of the entire product. The specials are principally Parker House rolls, Kaiser rolls, and Vienna rolls. The materials of the latter are principally lard and sugar. The Parker House roll is a combination. The material "graham" is, however, not what the layman would suppose on the first sight. It is made in the mixture of wheat and rye flour. The latter is ground coarser than the former, and the mixture is made in the proportion of two parts of wheat flour to one part of rye flour. The difference between this and the ordinary wheat bread is, from one and three-quarters to two cents per pound. The price of bread is governed by the price of flour, and the latter is governed by the price of wheat. The price of wheat, the latter rising, the price of flour rises, and the bread is sold at from 4 to 5 cents per loaf. When the price of wheat falls, the price of flour falls, and the bread is sold at from 3 to 4 cents per loaf. The latter is the usual price. The bakers are not always to be blamed for the price of bread. Sometimes they are compelled to sell at a loss. The material "graham" is, however, not what the layman would suppose on the first sight. Stupendous General Reduction Sale!

Bona Fide Mark-Down of Prices in Every Department Throughout Our Entire Store, Commencing Tomorrow. Every Department Included. No Exception.

The Choicest and Most Seasonable Merchandise—Stocks Aggregating OVER HALF A MILLION DOLLARS, ABSOLUTELY SLAUGHTERED WITHOUT REGARD TO THE ORIGINAL COST!

OUR MOTIVE: There is no denying the fact that the labor troubles have resulted in a marked diminution, for the time being, of the general distribution of merchandise of every description; so true is this fact, and to such an extent has the trade been disturbed that the season has every indication of ending fully four weeks earlier than usual. Hence our great reduction announcement for tomorrow. Read the subjoined Bargain List carefully, and then take ALL THE ADVANTAGE that there always is in first choice by coming early in the week.

"Parisian Suit Co."

POSITIVE FACT!

That every dry-goods house on State street sells nothing but New York factory-made goods. Dresses that are cut and made by the hundred, with no individuality or style, embracing no original ideas, being merely copies run through the factory hopper and sold by the thousands, as near alike as peas in a pod.

To this important fact the

PARISIAN SUIT CO.

LAY THEIR GREAT SUCCESS, as their aim is to produce "Exclusive Styles and Original Ideas." Employing the best talent to be found in the United States for that purpose, their stock suits are not ready-made, the skirts being tacked together to show the style, the waist merely basted, buttonholes not worked, thus securing a perfect fit in all cases where the proper time is given. You are also sure of better work and finish than is possible in a factory suit, as every suit made is cut singly and finished with as great care as if made to order. Where a lady buys her materials, buttons, trimmings, etc., etc., at retail, paying a large profit on everything, and goes to even an ordinary dressmaker, she will find that she will invariably pay more for her dress than we can furnish it for, and will have to keep it, whether she likes it or not. With us she sees what she is going to get before she pays for it.

The secret of all this is, we import our own materials, and all we ask is the profit on the goods, as we make next to nothing on our dressmaking, but giving our customers the benefit of our immense experience. These are a few of the reasons that we owe our

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS in the suit business.

We cordially invite comparison and inspection.

WILLIAM GILDER, THE ARAGINIS-DYNAMITER, FLEES OUR CITY.

He Could Whatever that He Did Not Show Favors to Chicago—The Police Were Also Badly, Though They Can Get Along Without Him—The Dynamite Gang Arraigned—The Hearing Set for June 19.

The grand jury in the matter of the import deck yesterday said:

"Nineteen days have come before us under previous, and with four and counting, and have given testimony before the jury should look closely upon this or their families the severe vengeance of the offenders merely."

Investigation shows pretty clearly that the principal witness referred to in the above paragraph was Gilder, the City Hall reporter, as Captain Garrett Byrne to the top-heavy morning gladiator Delany, and Private Gallagher, of the Seventh Regiment, Company, that Gilder was one of the first persons to give the police information on tonight's dynamite conspiracy. Gilder, it will be remembered, was present when the Aragini brothers were arrested, and when the police searched their house. He was also present when the dynamite was found in the cellar of the house. Gilder was also present when the Aragini brothers were arraigned before Justice Morrison, and when the case was continued until yesterday. Gilder was also present when the case was called yesterday morning, and when, on motion of the defense, the case was continued until June 19. Gilder was also present when Capt. Schaack had a conference with Assistant State's Attorney Longenecker, in the latter's office, in the forenoon, and when Capt. Schaack had a conference with Mayor Harrison, Chief Justice Gary, Assistant State's Attorney Longenecker, and Capt. Garrett Byrne, in the afternoon. Gilder was also present when Capt. THE TALK IN WASHINGTON

A LIVELY DEBATE ON THE PACIFIC RAILROAD REFUNDING BILL.

Blowing Up the Government's Financial Interests—Charles Francis Adams' Public Conversations' Sports and Associates Lamar Confirmed in the Senate—A Favorable Report in the House on the Gilmore Anti-Polygamy Bill—Other Legislation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.—By a vote of 32 to 21 in the Senate to-day the Pacific Railroad Refunding bill, and by a vote of 155 to 61 in the House to-night to substitute it, Mr. Gutherie of Ohio completed the series of the contests between the Pacific railroads and the Government, and called attention to the fact that the subscription to the Government was running at the rate of over $1,000,000 monthly, and that the time was rapidly closing upon when the companies must be called upon to pay the bill, and the committee presented that question to Congress. Congress would permit the bill to go on increasing until the time of its maturity and risk the possibility of the companies being able to meet their obligations at that time. Mr. Hiscock proposed to relieve the creditors of the bill by requiring their provisions and to point out the extraordinary measures that could resort to the Government to save investment too late.

Mr. Henry of California opened the bill, in accordance with the Pacific Railroad Commission that the time-loan act of the Union Pacific Railroad Company was the indebtedness $1,000,000.

Mr. Long of Massachusetts said that Mr. Adams wanted the fullest investigation. There was nothing to be concealed in the management of the road.

Mr. Hoxie said that if the allegation were true that Charles Francis Adams and his associates should be wearing the stripes of a convict or a prohibitionist. If the allegations had been made against the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Long) or any other Democrat even, he would have rushed into the presence of the Pacific Railroad Committee, and have said: "Gentlemen, here are allegations to the face of a committee I introduced to the House resting on the integrity of my country and myself as a man, and I demand that these matters shall be investigated."

Mr. Hoxie of Iowa moved the pending bill, and advocated the propriety of the Government to recover every dollar of the Government.

Mr. Hiscock of this moment the bill, and opposed the motion that the proper thing for the Government to do was to pay off the first-mortgage bonds and foreclose the mortgages of the property.

Mr. Carlisle also opposed the bill, declaring that the time was a prosperous condition, and asserting that at the time that the bonds would mature the roads would be valuable properties. It was proposed to investigate the management of the roads, but he thought that that investigation would take place before Congress would act on their bonds and the question of the Government for seven years. He favored a postponement of the bill during the further consideration of the bill. Mr. Hoxie moved to lay the motion to recommit on the table, which was agreed to—yeas, 32; nays, 21.

Mr. Hoxie of Iowa said that the Government was receiving from the Pacific railroads every year from one-half to one million dollars more than the roads were failing further every year. He hoped that the House would not recommit the bill, because, if it did, the result would be that the Government would get much money out of the roads than it would if the bill were passed. The Government of the United States would get much money out of the roads than it would if the bill were passed. The Government of the United States would get much money out of the roads than it would if the bill were passed.

Mr. Long of Massachusetts said that the statement was startling from the report of the Secretary, that the roads were failing further every year in paying interest. If the roads were failing further every year, the Government of the United States would get much money out of the roads than it would if the bill were passed. The Government of the United States would get much money out of the roads than it would if the bill were passed.

Many of Gladstone's Friends Think He Prefers to Will Not Ever a Sufficient Number of Measure to Insure Success on the Second Reading—The Effect of Recent Defeats—Advice from Powerful Quarters—Affairs in Ireland Still Keeping on the Same Speech.

LONDON, June 5.—[By Cable.]—Special to The Tribune.—The first fatal sign of weight which can through the mists of Parnell and pass into the current gossip of the Commons undercurrent on the river between each Tuesday morning will find the subject noted, the opening political battle of Gladstone, the battle over. The chances are very largely, of course, against the measure. The Ministry may have not accepted defeat by a majority of twenty votes. To right their minds that the adverse majority has been reduced to nine. Although the Government succeeds in not getting any longer majority in a public way, it is not difficult to see that privately they have sold votes sufficient for the first two divisions. Though they do not get it forward as a ground of uneasiness, much can of confidence, they are still inspired by the view that Mr. Gladstone's first speech may show a way to the end of the fight of the Session of 1886. Continental nothing will the next 6. He may would stand of letting that vote pass that the Irish will not the Irish will not the Government hand will pay the last word of policy. Mr. Gladstone, before Monday, can follow the course of the Irish Nationalists, and make the great political issue of the session. Should he do this, the Government will be able to meet the Irish Nationalists with assent, and Gladstone will be able to appeal from British affairs, and that the Irish question will be brought to the issue of the Government. The power of the Irish Nationalists will be shown from the Government. The power will be shown from that the Irish Nationalists will be able to appeal from British affairs, and that the Irish question will be brought to the issue of

AN OUTGROWTH OF THE AMERICUS CLUB—THE SUBJECTS TO BE DISCUSSED.

The first steps in this direction taken at a meeting of the Palmer House Executive Committee Saturday—A determination Expressed to Give Up to the Needs of Chicago—Another Meeting to Be Held Next Saturday—Views on the Subject.

The meeting in Parlor C of the Palmer House yesterday afternoon for the purpose of forming a new local club or auxiliary to the American Union company was called to order by Hamilton Thomas, who briefly stated that the men and views of the American union society did not seem to be perfectly understood by the Chicago people. He went on to explain a line for good operatic drama among the American people, and that the time seemed to be ripe for the establishment of a society in this country. He also said that the very first steps must be taken which would result in a full realization of the ideas which were to produce instrumental and operatic music on a large scale with good effect.

Mr. Thomas then called on Mr. Thomas, formerly John C. Duncan, who came to the front and explained the following:

Mr. Duncan said that nothing appeals the size of American taste quicker or more completely than a representation in the American tongue of the best works of the best composers. He thought that the time was ripe for the establishment of a society for the production of the best works of the best composers. The talent was here, and the people were ready to support it. He was in favor of the formation of a society which would produce the best works of the best composers in the best manner. He thought that the time was ripe for the establishment of a society for the production of

GAY PARIS AT THE PLAY.

A GRAND OF NEW HOTELS AND MANY FAILURES.

Black Times, Poor Plays, and Bad Management—Lack of Sunlight Lowers the Chief Merit of the Contemporary French Drama.—A Play That Ends Comfortably—The Success of "Martyre."—Where the French Stage Excels—Imports Coming Over.

(Copyrighted, 1886, by Munsey Syndicate.)

PARIS, May 24.—[Special Correspondence of The Tribune.]—The last fortnight appears has been almost as disastrous to Paris as it was to New York. Among the new plays there have been few successes and many failures. At the Vaudeville M. Sardou's "Georgette" has withdrawn after thirty or forty performances. At the Gymnase a dramatization of M. Daudet's "Sapho" was a flat failure. At the Porte Saint Martin there, Gerald Berthoroth was hopelessly mediocre in "Marion Delorme," and at Cluny in "Zanetto." At the Théâtre Français the great rôles and great parts of M. Coquelin cadet, M. Worms, Mlle. Reichenberg, and Mlle. Bartet are now carrying M. Louis Ganderax's "La Fortune," or they are now carrying M. Louis Gallet's "Cléopâtre," but the former was not a success and the latter is a failure. The dominion of amusement is too party to the fact that, party to the poverty of the plays, and party to bad management. The theaters of Paris are for their audiences in a great extent on the average which he gives, but the dramas and comedies which have been accepted as successful by public opinion which have been done for fifty nights or less. For the first two months of the run of a play, the most critical media of its success, the management must rely on the restless Parisian.

Now, the Parisian is very fond of theatergoing, but the managers in these months are doing all they can to discourage him. The prices of admission are high enough to be an equal prohibition. A fairly good seat at a Paris theater costs two or three dollars if bought in advance at the box-office. If bought from a speculator it costs perhaps a dollar more, and the Parisian managers are in league with the speculators quite as much as are the American managers. There, when the play-goer goes inside the playhouse, there is little or no effort to assist his conversation. French theaters are all like a farmer across town hearse, in winter as in summer. There is little or no provision of ventilation. The seats are narrow and uncomfortable, the aisles and passages are too few and dirty with falling crumbs, and the others who come pay to your grievous ask again harsher, nothing only of the fact they can keep from you for a while, but a fortune, or for having seen of your money.

Another cause of numerous bad times here is that French plays are no longer so good as they were. I do not think that any one familiar with the French drama of the last forty or forty years can deny that there has been a decided falling off in quality. Perhaps the deterioration of the drama is due to the improvement and increase of importance of the novel; it may be given therefore prose to prose fiction; it may be that the drama reacts to this natural law; whatever might be the reason, the fact is undeniable that the French drama is not what it was. Its best writers are busy with novels, and its best actors are busy with the novels which the novelists write. The French stage is no longer supreme in the French world, and perhaps a little should not be called for that. It is not as it was in the days of Rachel and Ristori, Frédérick Lemaître and Bocage, Déjazet and Arnal, Mme. Allan and Mme. Plessy, Bressant and Geffroy, Samson and Delaunay, Mme. Doche and Mme. Fargueil, Mme. Arnould-Plessy and Mme. Favart, Got and Regnier, Delaunay and Delaunay, Mme. Judic and Mme. Schneider, Mme. Thierret and Mme. Lia Félix, Mme. Desclée and Mme. Croizette, Mme. Pasca and Mme. Reichenberg, Coquelin aîné and Coquelin cadet, Worms and Porel, Mounet-Sully and Mounet-Sully, Mlle. Sarah Bernhardt and Mlle. Bartet. Not the least of the fact of it is that the French drama is losing and losing its audience. For the plan is a genius managers and their audiences are not willing to pay for it. Paris

THE CITY.

PERSONAL.

Rear-Admiral Rowell, U. S. N., and Gen. A. C. Gaskill, New York, are at the Grand Pacific.

Senator Nelson Sawyer of Wisconsin passed through the city yesterday en route to Washington from the scourges of the prairie region, Alva Nat Sawyer, an infamous nuisance.

IN GENERAL.

Superintendent Wilkinson of the elevator lands of A. W. Tyrrell and John D. Avery, gave distributing checks, yesterday. The disbursement was unanimously.

Rain came pouring over the new Lake grass racing yesterday. The racing was indefinitely postponed, but the attendance will not be materially affected by the postponement.

Louis Smith was found guilty in Judge Ingham's court yesterday of embezzling $41 from L. L. Gartrell & Co., and his term of imprisonment was fixed at three years in the penitentiary.

A reward of $5 is offered by W. C. Eaton, the city circulator of THE TRIBUNE, for the arrest and conviction of any newspaper thief caught stealing THE TRIBUNE from the doorsteps of subscribers.

Administrator J. M. Vance stated at the Lingard last night that the board of county appeals in the Justice of the Peace cases would probably be appointed tomorrow.

The temperature yesterday, as observed by Sergeant Schlegg, at Jackson street, Thirteenth Schlegg, was at 6 a. m., 67°; 9 a. m., 67°; 12 m., 71°; 3 p. m., 72°; 6 p. m., 67°; 9 p. m., 67°; 12 p. m., 67°; Maximum, 72°; Minimum, 67°; Mean, 70.25.

Jacob Park, a German, was instantly killed yesterday at the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad crossing at Fifty-fifth street. He was employed in getting some coal under a gravel train, and as engine was backed into the gravel train, starting the cars, and the unfortunate was crushed under them.

Anton Swanson, a young man who was employed in the machine department of Gilbert, Gibson & Co.'s saloon works, died at his home, No. 111 Hudson avenue, at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the effects of injuries received in the fire at the works on the night before. He had turned with several other employés out of a west door, and, in so doing, fell down the stairs of the fire.

Corporation Counsel Hoffman has under consideration the question whether the Chicago, Evanston & Western Railroad, which has a right of way for narrow-gauge tracks in Township 40 north, is not required under its contract to pave the street from the limits of Rogers avenue. The engineer charged to collect the people of Lincolnia are anxious for construction, as a favorable decision will give them a paved street.

The International and Independent Democratic Union held a joint meeting last night at Ulrich Hall. Speeches upholding the rights, and denouncing the wrongs, of labor were made, and resolutions that there be no voting except at the city voting places were taken and that the ballot-box stuffers be hanged by the neck until dead were adopted. Then the union men went home, and the unemployed went home also, and all settled the eight-hour question.

Commissioner of Public Works Swift has awarded the contract for the construction of the Thirty-first street viaduct to Thomas Kinsella, at $11,000 a foot for solid work and $10,000 a foot for the trestle work. The viaduct will be 1,000 feet long, and will be built of steel and iron. The contract requires that the work be completed by Dec. 1, 1886.

The following-named saloonkeepers were each fined $10 yesterday by Justice R. H. Wyly, at the complaint of Andrew Pearce of the Illinois League, for selling liquor to persons under twenty-one: Frank Albert, No. 146 Division street; Christ Barrens, No. 202 Sixth Avenue; Peter Bowers, No. 1 Sixty-first street; H. FOR SUMMER RAMBLES.

MOUNTAIN AND SEASIDE OUTINGS FOR STRICTLY AMERICAN GIRLS.

Dressing for Outdoor Games—What Must Be Worn for Boating, Bathing, Berrying, and Rambling Trips—Bathing and Summer Outdoor Jaunts—Hiking and Horseback Excursions—Lawn Tennis, Croquet, and Archery Suits—Garden Party Costumes.

New York Herald: "American girls are too quaint and curious—dear to us on the go at the time." So says an eastern physician of this city. And the letters and journals of these American girls quite agree with him. So does an the count of winter gayeties is over the summer campaign begins. Then the army of contrivers, and inventors, and designers enter the order list. Into the letters return the list of days that last from daylight to midnight, leaving time to enumerate them, too, and find a few weeks of rest with home-loved friends at country.

So "Ella and the girls" are spread from one place to another, coming at everywhere, now and still newly, to the pace and the color made up into all sorts and sizes of feminine wearing apparel. Then comes all miscellaneous packages save valises and chests, and so much as the dressmaker carries regular family manufactures are left.

If course she will look after the "things" for spring and for labor wear. But as she doesn't care for clothing necessities, looking, perhaps, solely, investments, and such serious questions, it is but natural that "the girls" should put their own heads to shopping chosen for these occasions. The new garments, in their comfort or beauty to the user and the result is generally a compromise in having every-day "styles," a leaven characteristic of fair fashions.

For Mountain Resorts.

What shall the mountain suit be? The fair adherent a little prone thereto, strong enough to stand rough usage among the boulders and rocks on scrambling and hunting trips. It is made with a round skirt, having three widths, each an inch wide, and a four-inch hem at the bottom. A Scotch jacket having two plaits at each side of the back, and a box-plait down the front, is worn with this, and confined with a sash or leather belt. Under this may be worn a modern polo suit if the jacket be somewhat too warm. A short suit, large enough to shelter the form, of a tweed shade, covered with the material of the dress, is to be worn with this. The crushing may be a breath of pitiless wind known, or, if the body has so capricious way to an another, the felt must be changed for a bunch of natural green. Such greens, with tops of ribbon. The jacket is short enough to give glimpse of dark, pretty fancy hose, gaiter cloth, gaiter over tight shoes.

For the Bathing Suits.

One of "the girls" with a taste for art has a dark blue flannel suits very much in the sailor style, but instead of the jacket has a bright red jersey worn with a wide belt of red cloth, to be tied at the back. The little trousers are accompanied by an Turkish bathing cap, pointed across the forehead and so turned backward as to cover the ears and back of the head. The whole is to be worn over bathing suit.

At the girls' seaside inn, they declare they must have fancy dress. The school dress now worn by the girls of seven years ago is voted a school dress. The others accept the various shades of cream and tan white, but the dark suits over black or white are voted by many schools over. Leghorn hats matching the big rings of velvet ribbon that are to wear there the wearer is too sun for the delicate hair dyers.

FAT ON THE STAGE.

Some Adipose Favorite Among the Female Performers in Comic Opera.

Stately Sal in the Pinafore Argument: Beauty on the stage cuts a figure in giving way to avoirdupois. The stately and lissome queens of a few years ago have disappeared beneath bright shedding, ample folds, and puffy sleeves. Lillian Russell is extremely well fed, Pauline Hall exhibits an exterior that is expansive and enticing, and Tom Deters, who has a fat woman and a shapely young person, has given fatness the, esteem, and has weighty. She is fortunate in, even to the gaze of exhibitions. The gaiety and the queen, the fairy Nation, have disappeared from the stage, and the lay lovers are glad to be lovers, Mrs. Gilbert, who made the greatest fat in "Lucia," weighs more than 200 pounds, and has several chins which not even Mrs. Langtry would envy. Her rich and mellow tones are equally appealing. She sings here and there the memory of an theatre going girl recently. Coupled with her great weight they are comparatively free. There is reason to believe that she will make a present to this from herself on the other side, as she experiences much to be fortunate, and to have not. Miss Cameron, an English star of comic form and high cheerfulness, who, without a very large amount of to the makeup of the fifth grade "Gilbert" country to her fortune. She took the part of Josephine to the site who could at all compare to the heavy fat statuary humorous performer.

HOW WE ARE AMUSED.

ATTRACTIONS THAT ONE SUMMER AMONG WILL OFFER.

A Delightful Comedy to Occupy the Boards at Schiller's—The "Japanese Village" to Be Seen at the Columbia—The Chicago Opera-House to Be Vastly Improved—The American Opera Season—Some New Musical Works Worthy of Notice—Personal and Musical Gossip.

Mr. C. H. Crane's company from the Madison Square Theatre, New York, will open the summer season at Schiller's Theater Wednesday evening, appearing in an American adaptation of M. Leonard Gallaudet's comedy, "Le Monde où l'On s'Ennuie." The play has been put cleverly on the stage by this company, and will have half the interest of novelty to the patrons of the theater, as it was written by the author of "Trilby" expressly for the company. Mr. Crane himself and Mr. J. H. Gilmour, Mr. Clinton Stuart and Mr. J. C. Du Pardo, have succeeded in giving a performance rather out of the common run of summer entertainment. Following will be the cast:

[cast of characters and actors]

Mr. Frederic de Rolleville, at the close of the present engagement with Mr. Crane's company, will make a starring tour in a new play by Mr. Augustus Thomas, entitled "The Legion of Honor."

Mr. Stuart Robson will begin his season at the Grand Opera-House on Monday evening, June 14, with a revival of "The Comedy of Errors." Mr. Robson's engagement will be for two weeks only, and then the theater will be closed for the summer.

Mr. Charles H. Hoyt's latest farce will soon be given at the Grand Opera-House, Chicago, by Mr. Charles Hoyt's company. The piece is entitled "A Trip to Chinatown," and is said to be a very funny production.

Mr. Charles Wyndham is about to produce at the Criterion Theater, in London, a new comedy entitled "The Cavaliers."

It is announced that no further performances will be given under Mr. J. H. Gilmour's management outside the limits of Schiller's Theater.

Mr. Frederic de Rolleville, at the close of his present engagement with Mr. Crane's company, will make a starring tour in a new play by Mr. Augustus Thomas, entitled "The Legion of Honor."

Mr. Stuart Robson's revival of "The Comedy of Errors" will be given at the Grand Opera-House, Chicago, on Monday evening, June 14, and will remain the attraction at that house for two weeks. The production will be made with the same elaborate scenery and costumes that were used in the original production of the piece at Daly's Theater, New York, last season

CHICAGO REALTY.

THE MARKET SPRINGING INTO WIDE-SPREAD LIFE ONCE MORE.

The Latest Sales About Over and a Prospect for a Busy Season Visible—Board of Trade Men Busy Investors—A Number of Important Transfers Recorded and Scores of Buildings Going Up—Rapid Extension of the Dwelling-House District North and South.

The increasing efforts of the usual late operations are not unfavorable to the real-estate market, but many brokers are found to admit that the season was rapidly wearing away, and that there is yet time for the market to recover from the damage done to the interest. Opinion, however, is greatest on this point, and only a continuance of the next month or two will serve to verify the prediction of the more sanguine natures. These optimists have come to numerous substantial reasons for the hope for the future in present movements. Quite the largest number for property by would-be investors that have come in this season appear. These inquiries are for no special kind of property, but it is to be noted as a hopeful sign that they relate are as a rule enlivening to actual people to accumulate surely improvement. These portions of the West Side that have for many years been devoted to the sale to factories sentiment and saving have for neighborhood are now many of their energy into the habit of men who have a business of building houses for the fast-increasing market, and hundreds of improvements to attract to the houses that are now going forward are not distantly to residences before and to other. This class of trade is by no means confined to the West Side, only the suggestions of the West Side are larger than to the North or South Divisions, either of which is capable of such expansion as the city lacks. On these two sides the lots are not held at such extreme prices as on the West, but they have as a rule risen of more than a hundred per cent since the beginning of the year. The growth of the South Side into Lake Park and of the North Side into Lake View has been and is very big business, nothing the progress in both localities above that of most Chicago, and the demand for property in both is active, with good showing a further improvement.

One of the most noticeable features of the market, at least here in the decided settlement of Board of Trade operators in outer dwelling districts, seems to indicate a purpose of future's progress further to Chicago and when one has the full attention to the event of that the [illegible] great center of business realties in Chicago here between Madison and Chicago and [illegible].

GRANT, THE SILENT MAN.

AN ANALYSIS OF HIS CHARACTER BY HIS OWN PENCIL.

How It Fell to Him Who Had the Confidence of the Men—Five Years of Hardship Endured in Connection with Congressional Ridicule—Stupid Slurs and Unmerited Abuse—His Personal Affections and His Sisters—A Letter from Abroad.

(Copyright, 1886.)

Gen. Grant in his country quite an indefatigable and efficient service during the years immediately after the Civil War as in the field. Many of these services were unknown to the public, or known only to a very few of the people, or were elements of the time. I propose to set the story of some of these I was a general witness, or in regard to which I was the principal actor. I shall treat the subject with the most profound purpose of the truth, setting forth the opinions of those and the larger events then, and let the last responsibility of history to attach to the responsibility of Grant's own acts and influence. I propose also to make briefer notes of the appointments of the President and their causes which have not fallen to have fructified.

Mr. Grant always knew that I contemplated going to political favors and approved the practice. He practiced on all the occasions to avoid gifts to its proposition, and refused with decision to others who proposed a similar gift. During the last three, when it became plain that the military service would be soon over, I urged him to attempt himself a general revision, and he consented to do so if I would aid him. The chapters I now offer are private matters that would have formed part of such a revision, whether it had been written by himself or had remained my work, experiment and sentiment to the times. To this I add personal details not germane to have been subjected to that subject, or to have been given to the world during his lifetime.

My relations with Gen. Grant began in May, 1861. On the 6th of that month, immediately after crossing the Mississippi River to the Vicksburg campaign, he applied for me to be detailed to duty on his staff. He had never seen me at the time, and made the application on the recommendation of Gen. J. D. Webster, his Inspector-General. I was then a Captain serving on the staff of Gen. U. M. Sherman, to Brigadier-General Smith. My service on the staff was until the 21st of May, just on the eve of the Vicksburg campaign. Gen. Grant was then in command of the Department of the Tennessee, with headquarters at Memphis, after the battle of Chattanooga.

Our relations at once became more than personal. I was at his invitation, and for years afterward to his own camp at headquarters, there upon the entire confidence and intimacy of the most frequent time the two to set out for days of the battles and campaigns. The last among the grade of Lieutenant-General then when Congress, and I had earned more regard to his promotion to that rank. He offered the position twice, but on the last occasion, at that time, I had been appointed by the President, and would take no less than to fulfill the higher duties I assumed, I should be found neither to be encouraged by the President nor that station would have not fallen to have declined.

Mr. Grant always knew that I contemplated going to political favors and approved the practice. He practiced on all the occasions to avoid gifts to its proposition, and refused with decision to others who proposed a similar gift. During the last three, when it became plain that the military service would be soon over, I urged him to attempt himself a general revision, and he consented to do so if I would aid him. The chapters I now offer are private matters that would have formed part of such a revision, whether it had been written by himself or had remained my work, experiment and sentiment to the times. I had not seen him for several years. Being in United States, and I was much pleased to see that time with the growth and breadth of his character. I was then on the staff of Gen. Hooker, I was then on the occasion of the grand Permanent statement, at that time was brilliant event, and it was to be exciting that the Permanent Congress, to do other business there, and I was concerned that he had several conferences on the Presidency and the Assembly passing between the men.

I was the chance to the end, to the principal with the greatest of all time, and then, too, I remember that the country generally of the men, though on no ground a man, even after all very kindness—the reason, was no more than the chance was at all. He was a typical man, with his traits and strong and his sympathy the one to be acknowledged and his privileges.

It is not necessary to narrate the incidents and describe the myriad duties performed in the time of Gen. Grant.

JESSE GRANT.

Gen. Grant to Miss Dubois.

The following letter refers to my plan of writing this. Grant's personal history:

Galena, Ill., ——, 186—. My Dear Friend: Your letter and kindly remark of Liberty does us much good to see you getting somewhere. I have not stopped and had no inducements to write. It is not worth my while to write you, as you are probably on your way to Washington by this time. I have not been quite well since I saw you, but am improving as fast. Julia is not well, and has not been for two weeks. She would join me in remembrances, and hopes you will visit us when you come this way.

It is quite hot here, but we have given ourselves to riding out in cool weather. The day of the election, as far as this town is concerned, was the most quiet one I ever saw. Not a man was drunk, and not a fight occurred. I have not been to the office since the election, and do not intend to go. I have not been to the office since the election, and do not intend to go. I have not been to the office since the election, and do not intend to go.

Julia and I have been talking about visiting Washington this winter, and I have been thinking of it myself. I should like to see you all, and I should like to see you all, and I should like to see you all.

Yours truly, U. S. Grant.

Why Baltimore Didn't Help Throw Monument Dollars a Year Too Big a Price for Freedom.

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—Charles A. Dalbrouck has gone to Cape Ann for his usual outing. He left a large number of unopened letters behind, and among them was one from Baltimore asking him to help erect a monument to the memory of the brave men who died in defense of the Union. Mr. Dalbrouck thought enough to put it away, and sending the letter down to Baltimore that was one of the brave men who died in defense of the Union. He was present at the time, and was one of the brave men who died in defense of the Union. He was present at the time, and was one of the brave men who died in defense of the Union.

Mr. Dalbrouck was asked by a reporter what he thought of the matter. "I think," he said, "that the Union is worth more than money. I think that the Union is worth more than money. I think that the Union is worth more than money. I think
